

BRITON WHO REFUSED DROWNING HUNS HELP BREAKS DOWN; DIES

WOMEN OF OSTEND BRAND GIRLS WHO WERE FRIENDS OF GERMANS

German Kameraden	Most Beloved Ship
Demand Hot Dinner	Of American Navy
Promised By Fluer	Is Famous Colquor

Soldier's Uniform Has Nine Pockets

Since the numbers, insofar as we are concerned, are the same, the contents of the average uniform book will be found. Unnumbered letters in great numbers, some kind of a note book to keep addresses in, a pocket book (contents not explored), many Italian coins of large size and small denominations, and some more letters from the States.

American troops marching into Germany. The men, most of whom are of the 28th infantry, are crossing a bridge over the river Moselle, which marks the boundary line between the duchy of Luxemburg and Germany. In the group of officers to the right is (near foreground) Brig. Gen. F. C. Marshall. In the background is the Luxembourg city of Wermeldance. The contrast between the businesslike and unceremonious manner, in which American troops are performing the often unpleasant duty of preserving order in Germany, and the somewhat elaborate care the British take to impress upon the Hun that he is conquered, has been remarked by war correspondents. It is typical of the German that he appears to have more respect for those units of the armies of occupation which treat him with the strictest severity.

Several nights ago one of the commanders invited a couple of British officers over to the war museum to listen to the music of the band. The band is

[illegible]

Go Far Enough Today.
Tokyo, Japan, Jan. 18.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—The wedding of prince Masako, eldest daughter of prince Nashimoto, (at present prince regent), prince of matrimonial union between a member of the Japanese imperial family and the former emperor of Korea in the history of both peoples, was assimilated into our nation by the Japanese people. It was, however, as necessitated a partial revision of the provisions of the Imperial Household Law.

In observance of tradition and changes in the law were announced before the sanctuary of the imperial palace, the Imperial Palace, in appropriate Shinto ceremonies. At the same time similar reports were broadcast in the Imperial Palace, dedicated to the grand ancestors of the imperial house and the mausoleum of the late emperor Jimmu and the late emperor Meiji.

The wedding ceremony is to be held in the Imperial Palace, Nagasaki detached palace in Tokyo.

HOSPITAL FOR SHAM BATTLE AIMED AT CAPITAL OF THE PRUSSIANS

LONDON, Jan. 18.—The men of the 17th and 20th American divisions who are now in hospital at Dartford, near London, celebrated the conclusion of the armistice by staging a Red Cross "movie" a mock battle to immitation of their part in breaking up the Hindenburg line between Cambrai and St. Quentin during the last days of September and the first days of October.

The "tanks" in the attack were severely wounded men in wheel chairs; the ambulances were mainly wheelchairs. The battle took place on crutches. The battle took place glum when the enemy sent his peace emissaries to request armistice terms on November 8, the day the Americans stormed Sedan.

The actual cutting of the Metz-Luxemburg railway crippled the German transport base behind the retreating front in France and Flanders.

The fighting ran the French attack against the odds would have required Blumhardt to obtain reinforcements from somewhere else.

No Reserves.

The German divisions would have required Blumhardt to obtain reinforcements from somewhere else.

A Shell Hole Rats. The intention of letting Ribbenberg escape with his armies shattered but was, however, the first step in November marshaled forces concentrated a powerful force of men and massed a staggering number of batteries and tanks in the sector north of the town.

[illegible]

MUNITION DUMP ABANDONED, MAKES GAME FIGHT

where the bomb had exploded, felt was just alongside the right track, and zashés marred the gray of the spouson.

"Any damage?" queried the harassed truck driver, who had been driving the ambulance. "No, but the driver and tank commander burst inside. The crew were deafened, choked and blinded, and until the petrol fumes caught fire with a sucking gulp no one could see."

"That's all from a dream, the tank explosives and the shrapnel and high explosives burst occasionally by the rocky roadside. The ambulance men stopped for a while in the shelter of a small cliff, but when some wreckage lay from the other way.

Under Cover.

Nothing "Linda," almost sullenly, she said. "I'm going over to the angle of her Cape landing here."

Just as she topped the embankment two violent explosions shook her and proved too much for her stout heart, and with a huge internal rending she stopped dead.

With The Hellenes London, Eng., Jan. 14.—Residents of the Dodecanese islands recently arrived in London with an appeal to president Wilson, premier Lloyd

“You said it, call,” replied Herrick bluntly, lighting a cigarette. “It’s blow.”

And they blew.

LOST 48 ZEPPELINS.

TOMMIES RECEIVE UNEXPECTED OVATION
LONDON, Jan. 18.—This story is as much a "perimeter" which, because of the hurry, had not been removed. It was the London motor buses that furnished such transportation for Americans as "Lay-Hey."

The war sons staved a recognition of the variety used by college men to celebrate football victories before they got into the bigger game of war. The Italian people enjoyed it, and British Tommy in a London motor bus were entering Lille on their way to Mons. On the side of the bus was the theatre advertisement "Pot- kitchener's Mob." The French forthwith threw their caps into the air and shouted: "Vive le Gen. Polish, vive le Gen. Permutier."

AIMED AT CAPITAL OF THE PRUSSIANS

BY SMASHING PLANK MOVEMENT

Plans of the Great Marshal of France Believed To Have Been Known to German High Command and to Have Caused Acceptance of Humiliating Terms Imposed On Germany In Return For Halt of Offensive.

The actual cutting of the Mestres-Longvion railway crippled the German transport line behind the retreating front in France and Flanders.

intention of letting Hindenburg escape with his armies shattered but intact, however. By the first week in November marshal Foch had concentrated a powerful force of men and massed a staggering number of batteries and tanks in the sector north of the salient. They were to drive forward.

Way to North Open. Once the French, through the aid of light tanks and cavalry, had cut through to the region of Saint Amand and Boulay, their main force would naturally have swerved toward the

The attack was directed toward Fort Chateau Salinas menacing the communications between the United States and the enemy out of its locality through the enemy out of its locality further to the east. Approximately 1000 men were deployed in the Belfort region and the center of the enemy's great military center of transportation and communications.

ABANDONED, MAKES GAME FIGHT

"Any damage?" queried the harnessed tank engineer. "No, nothing," replied the driver.

But her gearing machinery was damaged.

Has Shell Shock.

"She's got a shell shock, she has; she's nothing but a bloomin' 'Shell-shock Little'" exclaimed the driver.

"Shellsack Lizzie" crawled out the angle of her cape lending her a grin, sarcastic air. Machine gun bullets rattled on her scarred hide with about as much effect as peas on a rhinoceros. In her turn, "Shellsack Lizzie" got busy and the count of

With The Hellenes London, Eng., Jan. 18.—Residents of the Dodecanese islands recently arrived in London with an appeal to president Wilson, premier Lloyd George and members of parliament.

"The Dodecanese," the petition says, "where Herodotus, the father of history, and Hippocrates, the father of medicine, have seen the day; the Dodecanese, which have reared and inspired so many poets, physicians and the conduct of Americans in any branch of the military or naval service.

Kindly intercede in favor of their reunion with Greece, and to plead at the peace conference for their deliverance.

Tommies Receive Unexpected Ovation

and British Touring in a London motor bus were entering Lille on their way to Mons. On the side of the bus was the theatre advertisement: "Pot-
"Kitchener's Mob."
The French forthwith threw their caps into the air and shouted:
"Vive le Gen. Potash, vive le Gen. Perimutter."